The Aso Grasslands are a gift from our ancestors

Grasslands are integral to the landscape of Aso. While they may look like they developed naturally, Aso's grasslands actually exist thanks to centuries of maintenance by the locals. The result is a diverse grassland ecosystem and rich landscape. Without the help of the locals, these "artificial" grasslands of Aso would revert into scrubland and forests. Aso's 2,200 hectares of grassland are Japan's largest and they represent a culture where people live in harmony with nature.

Q1 Why are Aso's grasslands important?

A1. They are a habitat for many living things.

There are about 600 plant species found in the grasslands of Aso, some of which are very rare. The region is home to all kinds of wildlife, birds, and insects. So many butterflies live here that Aso is known as a butterfly paradise!

A2. They absorb carbon dioxide.

By fixing carbon in the soil as ash and through root growth, grassland soils actually absorb more carbon dioxide into the ground than what is released into the atmosphere by controlled burns. This in turn helps prevent global warming.

By grazing on the grasslands, akaushi cattle play a role in their protection

A3. They help retain water.

Grasslands allow less water to evaporate and store more water underground than forests. The groundwater that originates in Aso's grasslands feeds six rivers, including the Shirakawa and Chikugo Rivers, in turn providing water for Fukuoka City, Kumamoto City, and other population centers.

A4. Grass is used as a resource.

Grass from the grasslands is used as fodder for cattle and horses. It is also a high-quality building material and is used throughout Japan to make thatched roofs for historical buildings.

Aso's sustainable agriculture involves a cycle of controlled burns, grazing by cattle and horses, and grass harvesting. This cycle earned Aso its designation as a Globally Important Agricultural Heritage System.

Q2 How are the grasslands maintained?

A. By human hands.

Through repeated cycles of controlled burns, cattle and horse grazing, and grass harvesting, Aso's grasslands have been protected by human hands for over 1,000 years. Noyaki (controlled burns) prevent the grasslands from turning into woodland and help eliminate pests that harm crops and animals. Noyaki require many people to be effective, but fewer farmers and an aging population have made it difficult for noyaki to be carried out in full. We need the understanding and support of many in order for the grasslands to survive.

Aso: A holy place where Shinto and Buddhism coexist

The Aso Nakadake Crater attracts tourists from all over the world. Aso's frequent eruptions earned it reverence as a god of nature. Since ancient times, Aso Shrine has worshiped the crater as the embodiment of Takeiwatatsu-no-Mikoto, the god who created Aso. Buddhism also has religious links to Aso, as the crater was worshiped as the eleven-faced Kannon Bosatsu (an incarnation of Takeiwatatsu-no-Mikoto). According to one theory, the area around the crater became a sacred site starting in 8th century and flourished as a major center of mountain Buddhism, with 37 monasteries and 51 hermitages built as bases for monks and mountain priests. The coexistence of Shinto and Buddhism continues to this day, as do prayers for the volcano to remain calm.

Aso Shrine

Aso Shrine is the head shrine for about 500 other shrines throughout Japan.

Aso Shrine is revered as the most important shrine in Higo Province (modern-day Kumamoto). It combines Shinto religion with the ancient belief in the volcano itself as a deity. The shrine worships a family of 12 deities, including Takeiwatatsu-no-Mikoto, grandson of Emperor Jimmu and the founder of the Aso region. The shrine dates back approximately 2,300 years, with its history passed down through 93 generations of the Aso family.

Restoring one of Japan's Greatest Tower Gates

Aso Shrine was severely damaged by the Kumamoto Earthquakes of 2016. Its worship hall and other buildings were rebuilt in 2021. The remaining major restoration work, the Tower Gate was completed in December, 2023.

Mt. Aso Hondo Saigandenji Okunoin

The reconstructed main hall of Saigandenji Temple stands atop Mt. Aso, adjacent to Aso Sanjo Shrine. Buddha and the gods of Japan protect Mt. Aso's summit.

The spectacular scenery of Aso's Summit: Nakadake Crater, Kusasenri & Sunasenri

Nakadake Crater and Kusasenri are Aso's most recognizable symbols, and nearby Sunasenri has a landscape that looks like something from Mars. These three major sightseeing spots boast spectacular scenery and are close to one another, making it easy to visit all three in one go. They also offer unique perspectives on Aso's 600-meter-wide active volcanic crater.

The breathtaking, endlessly smoking Aso Volcano. Climbing the mountain to the crater is called miike-mairi and is a type of religious worship.

Hifuri Shinji & Onda Matsuri: Local Tradition Thrives in Aso

Aso's Agricultural Rituals: A National Important Intangible Folk Cultural Asset

Hifuri-shinji (fire-waving ritual) is held in mid-March to pray for a bountiful harvest in Aso. The farm god marries his bride as part of the mystical Goze Mukae ceremony where, in order to welcome the gods, bundles of thatch are lit on fire and swung around on ropes.

The Onda Matsuri is a festival where the 12 deities enshrined at Aso Shrine are transported on four portable shrines to visit the green rice fields around the shrine to observe how the crops are growing.

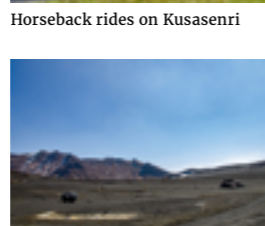

The Tanomi Matsuri is an event held at harvest time in which the first harvest rice is offered to the gods out of thanks for the year's bounty. The locals of Aso pass down these Shinto agricultural rituals and events from generation to generation.

- ▲Onda Matsuri. The gods are accompanied by a procession of about 200 people, including unari, holy women dressed entirely in white.
- ▲The Hifuri Shinji ritual is spectacular, with overlapping rings of whirling fire.
- ▼ Shinto rituals such as gan no sumo wrestling and yabusame (horseback archery) are held to appease the gods.

The Aso Park Toll Road offers easy access to the crater by car.

Sunasenri is a desolate, sandy expanse covered with volcanic ash.

Shikisai Landscapes of the Four Seasons

From colorful flowers, to green meadows, blankets of silvery grass, and a fantastic world of ice, Aso shows many faces throughout the year, each with different colors to enjoy.

spring

Grasslands Human hands have maintained the grasslands of Aso for centuries. Kusasenri is just a small part of the entirety of Aso's grasslands, which give the region a unique landscape and act as a habitat for Aso's diverse flora and fauna.

Sensuikyo

About 50,000 miyama-kirishima rhododendrons grow wild in this valley. The best time to see the flowers is from mid-May when they are in full bloom and cover the mountainsides in pink. The paths are well-maintained and crowded with tourists during the blooming season.

summer

Komezuka Komezuka is about 80 meters high and looks like an upturned rice bowl. Its unique shape was likely formed in an eruption about 3,300 years ago. The slopes are covered with young grasslands that are a vibrant green in spring and summer.

autumn

Autumn leaves at site of Matoseki Teahouse and Hayataka Tenmangu Shrine

This is the site of a mansion where the ruling Hosokawa clan rested on trips to the capital. The garden viewed from the approach to Hayataka Tenmangu Shrine and the autumn leaves reflected in the pond next to the temple are one of Aso's top autumn spots.

Unkai (sea of clouds)

If you're lucky, you may be able to observe the rare "sea of clouds" phenomenon from Milk Road, a road that runs along the north side of the Aso outer mountain ring. The view from Daikanbo, the highest peak on the northern Aso outer mountain ring, is breathtaking.

winter

Koga Falls

This waterfall consists of Otoko Falls (height: about 80 meters) and Onna Falls (height: about 100 meters). At the coldest parts of the year, the frigid winds from the Aso Valley freeze the falls, creating beautiful, delicate ice sculptures along the exposed rock face.

Aso A treasure trove of superb views

The Five Peaks of Aso resembling a reclining Buddha. A sea of clouds filling the entire Aso Valley.

Surrounded by a caldera, Aso is a treasure trove of spectacular scenery. Please come visit Aso and enjoy the breathtaking views you can only see here.

Views of the Aso cityscape and Five Peaks of Aso

Kusasenri Overlook

This spot overlooks Kusasenri, one of the symbols of Aso. The volcanic smoke from the Nakadake crater can be seen from this elevation of 1,100 meters. Many tourists visit with their cameras to capture the stunning scenery. The lush green grassland and ponds formed when it rains are a beautiful sight that should not be missed.

Data Kusasenri Overlook
Address: Nagakusa, Aso City
Parking: Yes

Daikanbo

This 936-meter-high overlook lies on the northern outer rim of the Aso Caldera. The view from here is spectacular and the Five Peaks of Aso seen from here supposedly resemble a reclining Buddha. Under the right conditions, you may even see the rare "sea of clouds," where a layer of clouds fills the valley and only the mountain tops are visible. There is also a souvenir store and a restaurant at Daikanbo, and it is a popular spot for star gazing.

Data Daikanbo
Address: Yamada, Aso City (Aso Daikanbo Tea Shop)
Hours: 8:30-17:00
Parking: Yes

Kabutoiwa Overlook

This overlook lies along Route 339 (Milk Road) on the west side of the north outer rim of the caldera. The spot offers panoramic views of the Five Peaks of Aso and the Aso Caldera, and is a good spot to see the sea of clouds in the morning. There is also a restroom next to the store, making it a convenient stopover on a road trip. The store sells souvenirs and refreshments.

Data Kabutoiwa Overlook
Address: Nishikoazono, Aso City (Kabutoiwa Overlook Shop)
Hours: 9:00-16:30
Parking: 40 cars

Shiroyama Overlook

This overlook is located along the Yamanami Highway connecting Ichinomiya-machi, Aso and Yufuin, Oita. Located on the 748-meter-high outer rim of the Aso caldera, it faces the Five Peaks of Aso and overlooks the townscape of Aso below. The sunset here is beautiful and, if you are lucky, early in the morning from spring to autumn you may glimpse the sea of clouds.

Data Shiroyama Overlook
Address: 2351 Mino, Ichinomiya-machi, Aso City
Open 24hr Parking: 15 cars

Ogidake Overlook

From the overlook at the top of Mt. Ogidake, there is a magnificent 360-degree panoramic view of the Five Peaks of Aso to the west, the Kuju Mountains to the north, and the mountains of Sobo to the south. The Furusato Nature Trail is easy enough for beginners and is a great hiking spot. Asahi Inari Shrine is located near the summit and is marked by a series of red torii gates.
